

Decisions - it's okay to change them!

As parents, we want to make the best decisions for our children. We gather information from various sources and then make our educated choices.

When it comes to young children who are deaf or hard of hearing, there are big decisions to be made - method of communication, whether to aid or implant, choosing a suitable school, and many more.

It is important to remember that you do not have to make a choice for life. Decisions can be changed based on your child's needs and preferences. The right choice is the one that works best for you and your child.
